'DEVELOPMENT OF COMPETITIVE MARKETING MODULES FOR MSMEs BOTH FOR RURAL AND URBAN AREAS'

Terms of Reference

1.0 Background:

The Micro, Small and Medium Enterprises (MSMEs) sector has emerged as a highly vibrant and dynamic sector of the Indian economy over the last five decades. Small enterprises not only play crucial role in providing large employment opportunities at comparatively lower capital cost than large industries but also help in industrialization of rural & backward areas, thereby, reducing regional imbalances, assuring more equitable distribution of national income and wealth. MSMEs are complementary to large industries as ancillary units and this sector contributes enormously to the socio-economic development of the country.

Marketing is one of the weakest areas where Micro, Small and Medium Enterprises (MSMEs) face problems. They do not have strategic tools/means for their business development as available with medium & large industries.

Constant change in the marketing dynamics as a result of technological revolution and marketing orientation in the wake of globalization is making profound impact on the competitiveness and existence of MSMEs. Conventional marketing thinking has served business practices well, yet, the passage from industrial economy into information economy is inducing new consideration that questions the suitability of conventional marketing thinking. Today's market faces some tough decisions and it is more complex. Domestic market, at one time, safe from foreign invaders, is now a happy hunting ground for giant global corporations. Major strides in technology have considerably shortened time and distance. New products are launched at an astonishing pace and are available world wide in short time.

The MSMEs are threatened in operations in the smaller markets also because of invasion of branded products through publicity blitz on satellite channels, with the result, the rural markets also prefer to have goods of established brands.

These problems are not being faced by MSMEs in the domestic market but also in the export market where Indian MSMEs have left its mark, particularly the traditional industry over the years. While the traditional sector generally caters to the niche market, usually high priced, in the foreign countries, the modern MSMEs compete with the counterparts from world over. They do not possess the benefit or a distinct geographical identity and appeal, which would ensure a receptive market. Hence, international marketing efforts for such enterprises have to be much more as the ambit of competition is much wider. The opportunities for free trade are exciting and so are the challenges facing these units. So far not affected traditional sector is also coming under pressure due to various non-tariff trade barriers, being imposed and other impending ones. Micro, Small & Medium Enterprises are at risk as a result of international presence and are unlikely to survive without making significant changes in approach for marketing of their products both domestically and internationally.

Keeping in view the ongoing process of economic liberalization, WTO regime, Regional Trade Agreements and impact of other comparable large countries on Indian economy, certain innovative and competitive Marketing Modules are required to be developed both for MSMEs located in rural and urban areas.

2.0 Assignment: Development of Competitive Marketing Modules for MSMEs both for Rural and Urban Areas.

3.0 Objectives of Study: To facilitate Competitive Marketing Modules to MSMEs located in Rural and Urban sector so as to make them competitive to face competition from domestic as well as International Markets.

4.0 Scope of Assignment:

- 1. To study the character of MSMEs in India located in the rural as well as urban areas with regard to ownership pattern, investment support and general business climate including the Government policies and impact of these factors in the growth of MSMEs in rural and urban areas.
- To assess the marketing related problems being faced by rural and urban MSMEs and suggest measures/solutions to overcome these problems. This would help the agency to develop the realistic competitive marketing modules for MSMEs separately for rural and urban MSMEs.
- 3. To explore opportunities in specific product segments, wherein Indian MSMEs (rural and urban areas) can compete favorably in the region. An analysis of possible synergies between specific product groups may also be done to enable the MSMEs in these selected segments to even out business cycle related demand fluctuations on both national and regional basis. This would help MSMEs for identification of right product i.e standardization of products and niche markets for their products.
- 4. To explore innovations in technologies including acquisition of new technologies in selected sectors, where MSMEs in rural and urban area may be able to improve the quality of their products and upgrade their business operations with limited investments in order to compete with domestic as well as international markets.

5. Finally to develop set of competitive marketing modules designed separately for MSMEs in rural and urban areas. Specific recommendations should also be given how the rural and urban MSMEs can be upgraded (technically and technologically) to compete with domestic as well as international markets detailing products, timeline and technologies etc.

5.0 Methodology:

- 1. Specific sectors of rural and urban MSMEs to be identified and studied where MSMEs can compete with domestic as well as international markets.
- 2. Study a sample of successful entrepreneurs to find out what are their strengths and contributing factors to their success and what are the lessons to be learnt, which ca be replicated elsewhere?
- 3. Sample size of at least 1,000 micro, small & medium enterprises located in rural and urban areas (500 each) covering all the regions of the country, should be taken and study distinctively keeping in account representation of niche industries. Information to be collected through desk research, personal interviews and survey. In addition, the sample size should also include study of at least 10 Industries Associations engaged in the development and promotion of MSMEs located in rural and urban areas, covering all the regions of the country.
- 4. Preparation and submission of draft report to Ministry of MSME containing Competitive Marketing Modules to be adopted by rural and urban MSMEs and suggesting acquisition of new technologies to counter the competition both within India & abroad.
- 5. Submission of final report. Report would include policy recommendations for the govt and based on conclusions steps that govt can take
